In 2011, Ealing Borough council commissioned Alison to create street banners for a public art project, and to teach digital printmaking to young people who then created their own banner designs. The banners were on display for a year, and some are on permanent display in Acton Library, London Borough of Ealing.

On completing DEVELOPING FINE ART PRACTICE at the City Lit, two of Alison's prints were purchased by the college for its permanent collection.
